The Pikes Peak Ringers is an auditioned community handbell choir. The group was established in 1991 by its director, Kevin McChesney, to provide an outlet for advanced ringers and to create performances that showcase the instrument of handbells with the highest quality presentation and musicianship. The group has performed a variety of styles of music – classical, traditional, pop, jazz, new age, contemporary and original – and has developed a unique and influential style of visual as well as musical presentation.

In addition to performances throughout the Pikes Peak region, they have been the feature group at national handbell events have been involved with publisher in providing promotional recordings of new releases, and have made three performance CDs. The first provides a wide variety of first-rate handbell music entitled “By Request.” The second offers a wide variety of Christmas music in various styles titled “Ring We Now of Christmas.” The last includes the premiere recording of “Ring of Fire - Concerto for Handbell Chior and Orchestra.” Information concerning the group, concerts, and ordering information for their recordings is available at www.pikespeakringers.org.
